Dear Mr. Pyper:

Allen W. Dulles, Director of Central Intelligence, has asked me to reply to your letter of September 9, 1958 and to advise you that Mr. Dulles has not expressed any opinion regarding the American system of education versus that of Great Britain.

At Mr. Dulles' request I am enclosing a copy of his address made at Columbia University, New York, in which he does discuss the educational system of the Soviet Union.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Dulles,

I am a student at Northern High School in Flint, Michigan. I am a member of our School's Debate squad.

Our topic this year is whether or not the United States should adopt the educational system of Great Britain.

I would like your opinion of our system of education. Do you feel that we need a change in our educational system? If we do need this change would the system of Great Britain solve our problem? If you have any speeches on this subject I would like copies of them, if possible.

Thank you Mr. Dulles for time on this subject.

Sincerely yours,

Thomas D. Pyper
